

Your Privacy

When you visit any website, it may store or retrieve information on your browser, mostly in the form of cookies. This information might be about you, your preferences or your device and is mostly used to make the site work as you expect it to. The information does not usually directly identify you, but it can give you a more personalised web experience. Because we respect your right to privacy, you can choose not to allow some types of cookies. Click on the different category headings to find out more and change our default settings. However, blocking some types of cookies may impact your experience of the site and the services we are able to offer.

1. What are cookies?

- 1.1. A “Cookie” or “tracker” is a small text file that is saved in the memory of your browser on your hard disk when you visit a website, read an e-mail, and install or use software or a mobile application, and that makes it possible to record and track data concerning your use of the website. These data do not identify you directly, but they may provide information about your preferences or your device. They are mainly used to ensure the proper functioning of the Site, as well as to enable us to obtain statistics and details about Site visits. These data do not generally identify you directly, but they can provide you with a personalised web experience.

2. What cookies are used?

- 2.1. A cookie is a small piece of data (text file) that a website – when visited by a user – asks your browser to store on your device in order to remember information about you, such as your language preference or login information. Those cookies are set by us and called first-party cookies. We also use third-party cookies – which are cookies from a domain different than the domain of the website you are visiting – for our advertising and marketing efforts. More specifically, we use cookies and other tracking technologies for the following purposes:

2.1.1. Strictly Necessary

These cookies are necessary for the website to function and cannot be switched off in our systems. Some of these cookies are only set in response to requests made by you, such as setting your preferences, logging in or filling out forms. They may also be set for certain security purposes and network management. You can manage these types of cookies using your browser settings, but it may affect your ability to use our website.

2.1.2. Targeting

These cookies are used to collect information about your browser, device and website visit and use such formation to provide you with personalised experiences and advertising on this website and others across the internet. If these cookies are disabled, your data will not be shared with third parties for this purpose. If you are located in the United States, local law may provide you with the right to opt-out of the sale or sharing of your personal information to third parties. You may exercise your right to opt out of this activity by disabling targeting cookies using this toggle switch. Additionally, you may find further information about exercising your consumer rights under local law by visiting our privacy notice.

2.1.3. Functional

These cookies enable the website to provide enhanced functionality and improve your experience. They may be set by us or by third party providers whose services have been added to our website. If you do not allow these cookies, you may not receive the best experience when visiting our website and parts of our website may not function properly.

3. How do I manage Cookies?

3.1. You can choose to accept or decline some or all Cookies. On your first visit, by clicking the “Cookie Settings” link on the Cookie banner, you will be able to set your preferences according to the type of Cookies. You can change your Cookie preferences at any time using the “Cookie Settings” button in the footer of our website pages.

3.1.1. Always Active

These cookies are necessary for the website to function and cannot be switched off in our systems. Some of these cookies are only set in response to requests made by you, such as setting your preferences, logging in or filling out forms. They may also be set for certain security purposes and network management. You can manage these types of cookies using your browser settings, but it may affect your ability to use our website.
